

Who I was, Who I became?

I was once selfish, I was once self-centered, I was once a narcissist, and I used to run away from my fears at the expense of others. Because of these things I created a pain, fear, and I hurt the person who I truly loved at that point in my life. The fear inside my heart stopped me from realizing this, and that led me to breaking their heart and losing their faith in me. I was not the best boyfriend during that time of our relationship, I was going through personal things that blocked my heart from being open, so it led me to more pain and isolation. I turned into someone that was consumed by fear, pain, and loneliness. All of these things that I felt at that time were not real, all imaginary things that became so real to me that it led me to believing that they were real emotions. Gosh, I felt like I was drowning in 10 feet deep water but in reality, it was only 3 feet of water. This was something that I became very aware when God (the universe, to me its all the same, but I will use the God) saved me and took those emotions away. God took away the fog that was clouding my reality, that it blocked me from seeing and feeling the truth, and because I asked God for help, God responded and that allowed me to see my wrongs and believe that anything was possible. That moment of realization was the moment that I was born again. I was no longer feeling the pain and fear in my heart, I no longer felt alone, I no longer felt worthless. Its difficult to explain, but I felt like I was born again.

Typing this is fun because I am still in shock myself that I was saved by God. I am shocked because it took me so freaking long to realize that God was always there, waiting for me to ask, with all openness and willingness to change my ways. And I know that its hard to believe or understand what im sharing because maybe you have not experienced this. If you have then that's great, because that means that you clearly know what I mean lol. So for those of you that cant quite understand try this, hold your breath, swear to the most important person in your life that you will not breath until they text you or call you, so until then you have to hold your breath, and if you breath before they text or call you, your punishment will be to let them go and never talk to them again. Then imagine that you are reaching your limit, you cannot keep holding your breath any longer. Your eyes are beginning to get filled with tears because you are sad, you cannot believe that you are about to lose someone you truly love, and the pain is so overwhelming because you fear that you will never see them again, and then all of a sudden you get a text from them or a call. WOW!!!! Right before you were about to lose them, they heard your cries and prayers, they somehow heard you and decided to reach out! They saved you from losing something so precious, you were saved, and now you believe that you and that person are meant to be in each other's lives forever, for sure for sure now lol. This is the best way I can help you understand what it feels to be save by God.

So now that you know and are able to understand a bit more what I mean by being saved I will talk about what I learned after I was rejected to have the chance to prove with my actions who I had become and what I was now capable of...

I tried to win her back but nothing I did was valid or good enough. The pain in her heart was so deep that she did not want to risk feeling it again. And this is what I experienced...

I do not blame her for not giving me a second chance to prove with my actions that I was not going to be a second mistake. I do not blame her for not wanting to see my face, not wanting to feel my touch, not wanting to hear my voice. I created these things in her heart, and I was paying for them with same tears of pain that she once shed. Man, I created so much pain, and every tear that I shed hurt so much. It was the most intense pain, sadness, and loneliness that I have ever felt, my body shook, and my hands trembled when I would reach for tissue. This is the pain that I accepted, that I acknowledged as my creation and at that moment all I wanted to do was feel it all so I could remember it well. I wanted to remember this great pain so I would never make the same mistakes again and must deal with it. So I did, I cried for a couple days, I cried while walking, while exercising, while meditating, I cried because I needed to remember and I need to experience it so I could let it go. Funny how these things change you, and how our actions can one day pay us back 10-fold. So to be clear I never hit her, cheated on her, or anything that terrible, I simply broke commitments that meant a lot to her. I did not give her the amount of respect that each commitment represented to her, I did not give her the comfort she wanted from me, and the time to show her I truly appreciated her and loved her. All of these simple things I was not able to provide because of my blindness, my selfishness, my self-centered, and narcissistic traits that I had at that time. Clouded by imaginary things, clouded by things that could have been avoided if I would have been more vulnerable and honest with her. That is why I believe she was put in my path to teach me this great lesson, she told me my truths, she told me she was hurt by my actions, she just could not forget that pain, and she was just not able to allow me to have a second chance. I was too late when I tried to show her that I was not the same man, but I had broken her heart so deep that my words were worthless to her soul. She taught me valuable lessons that have made me stronger, made me wiser, and made me believe in God, and myself more than ever.

The pain I felt in my heart I understood well, I understood that she no longer believed in me. I understood that she did not believe in God, and his miracles the same way I did. And I understood well why she had said that I was just another crazy ex obsessed with her. God had saved me from the pain, fear, and loneliness that was corrupting my heart, and God gave me his unconditional love and a new life.

I have changed because of God's love, God's forgiveness, and God guides me until this day. So, I know I am not crazy or obsessed, I am a miracle, a man that was able to change because I was able to give myself to God and I did my best to prove to her that I was not the same. If that makes me crazy, then that's ok, because God has given me so much, God has always been there for me with his unconditional love, and I would rather stay true to true than give up God's love.

The Second time God saved me from Pain...

The second time God showed me his unconditional love and gave myself up completely to God, I asked God to save me and allow me to move on, at that moment God heard my cries and prayers and did exactly that. Tears ran down my cheeks, but they felt good, they felt warm, and my pain and sadness went away. God blessed me with a second miracle, God took away my pain and gave me the chance to continue with my new life, improved personality, and so I promised to devote myself to continuing to change my ways and making sure that I never went back to those dreadful days. I promised God that I would never hurt my loved ones and cause pain in their heart, and God asked me to help others that were going through the same pain. I promised God that I would do everything I could to share my story in hope that others can see that Gods love is unconditional and that you can also be given this wonderful gift of a new life. I am not a prophet, or a wanna be Jesus Christ, or anything in that form, I am simply doing my best to show God how thankful I am for granting me this miracle of removing that pain from my heart and giving me a new life, so this is my way of showing God how thankful I am for the unconditional love and support I have been blessed with.

That is who I was, and who died to help me realize who I was destined to become. I am no longer that man I used to be, 3 months, 9 months, 12 months ago, I am no longer living in fear or in pain. This is my experience, its is my perception, and these are my words. I took an oath and I promised to God to never lie again to those I love and cherish because I know that it would me to more pain, so I don't plan on going back on my word, and even though its not always easy I do my best to express my truth in a polite, caring, and empathetic way. I have the power, I have God's love, and I have been blessed with a new life. So here I am sharing my vulnerabilities and my past because I have nothing to hide. The truth set me free, the truth allowed me to be saved by God, and now I have this opportunity to show others with my actions, that I am not crazy, obsessed, or a mistake. You do not have to believe any of this, that is not the purpose of this. My purpose now is to live in honesty, To not let fear control my mind or heart, To not let others control my thoughts, To live to love as much as God loves me, and to share this great love and wisdom with anyone willing to listen and experience it.

I am here to find love, a love that has no secret agenda, a love that is willing to accept me for my beliefs, a love that also believes in God, in miracles, and the power of love. I will never force you to believe in God as much as I do or anything like that, but I do understand the importance of accepting one's beliefs. I would like to meet a WOMAN, I don't care if you believe that you are a fairy, a Witch, An alien, A whatever you identity yourself as, I just want to be clear that I am looking to meet a WOMAN lol. I accept everyone, I am not here to judge, whatever it is that you believe you are, that is perfect. You be who you want to be, don't feel bad, or worry about what I might think. Worrying about what others think is simply in your imagination. It is not real because it is not there in front of you. What you think in your head is just a thought, an imaginary creation in your head that cannot manifest itself until you act on it and make it real. So learn from my mistakes, stay in the present and don't be afraid to be you! The people that love you will always show you their authentic self, no mask to hide behind, no walls, no barriers or disguises that hide your truth.

I don't seek anyone that's just like me, I don't seek anyone that believes in God exactly like I do, I don't seek for anyone to change for me, I don't seek for anyone that is perfect! I do seek honesty; I do seek someone that is willing to talk and be open about their wants and needs.

I do seek someone willing to take their time getting to know me, and I do seek someone willing to give me the time to understand who they are.

I do not seek supermodels, or barbies, or the hottest of the hot, I have had my share of that, so I don't care about that, I never have, and now more than ever I really don't care.

I don't seek a simple, complacent, or someone that doesn't like change, if you like to stay the same as always then ok, but I know that I rather be with someone that ok with some change in their life (trying new things, new food, new games, whatever is different from the normal routine)

I do seek someone that is okay about talking about their fears, their aspirations, their dreams, their pains, their lessons, because how else would I know how to make you smile or help you through those pains?

I am simply putting myself out there in hope that God can bless me with a human that can allow me to love them like no other, and that is willing to believe in me, that can accept me for my past, that is willing to take the time to fall in love with me, that is willing to be ok with being vulnerable.

I am not broken, and I am not damaged goods, I have scars like you, and I am proud of what I have experienced.

The past is already gone, all we have now is the present and that is what I want with you.

We all have cried over the same fear, pain, heartbreaks, you, and I are not that different.

I share this with you all because I believe that it is better to be truthful about the past, instead of hiding it and letting it create fear that will create distrust in the present.

Why hide these things, be proud of the pain and experiences you went through but be prouder that you will not let them happen again!

Remember God talks to us through what is in our hearts, not "logic" and doubt and fear.

"We each come from different backgrounds and are each given different strengths, some more than others.

However, God rewards those that walk in faith NOT fear. Whatever you FEEL in your instinct is God telling you to walk in Faith and trust in him for hope that is SEEN is no hope at all and faith that cannot be tested is faith that cannot be trusted.

Just know that every thought you think, breath you take, step you walk is all in his glory.

His son, our brother, died brother died for us to save us and give us the opportunity to live and love one another as God loves us always. If we close our eyes no matter how bad things may be, say, "I'm all yours lord, and give me your love because I am yours and I am worthy of your unconditional love."

So go forth and develop what is on your heart for those who are FAITHFUL over few shall be ruler over many. Good things did not start happening to me until I accepted That I'm living for God and his love."

If you feel like any of this resonates with you and would like to chat please feel free to email me
@lovelypravda333@protonmail.com